WALLINGFORD.

The electric light question, which is ausing quite a little discussion of late is one that needs be carefully considered and looked at from its various standoints. On this subject some of our leading citizens voice the opinion of a large number of our taxpayers and others as follows: The committee apcointed at the recent borough meeting o visit the legislature on the matter is working in all manner of ways to carry its point in Hartford, but as yet aprently has done nothing toward enlightening its followers on several points of the electric light question, which will be found to be important ones, should the matter ever reach that stage where the question of cost comes in. The cry has been, "we must have electric lights," but not one out of twenty have stopped to consider that the expense of the luxury will prove an important factor when it comes to be considered, and at the present time the borough's finances are not in a condition for an outlay of several thou-sand dollars for a luxury. The projectors of the scheme have been careful from the outset not to present any esdmate as to the cost that will entail upon the borough should their efforts be successful, as it might have dampened the ardor of the 320 or so that were so eager to vote on the question, to say nothing of the 1,000 others who did not turn out to vote either one way or the other. The committee has tried through its official organs of the press, to make the outside world believe that there is an almost unanimous demand of the citizens and taxpayers for electric lights, to be conducted by the corough, and that the matter of cost does not enter into the question, but the honorable dealing. They have a mamimpression is not a fair one, as there are many of our more thoughtful citizens who are not so easily dazed by electric lights and prefer to look a little workmanship. Prices will be found to below the shining surface into the real common sense depthe, and go alittle more careful, as will be found when the matter of appropriation comes up, if it ever does. There is no question but that the citizens would like to see the borough of Wallingford lighted by electricity, but do they want to pay the large amount that it will necessarily cost at this time, or a year later? There seems to be a desire on the part of the leading lights of the committee to keep the public from the real facts which must necessarily come out later. There are many who suppose that if the com mittee's scheme succeeds that the gas company, which holds the franchise to light the berough granted by the legis-lature, will simply be thrown overboard without ceremony, and that will be the end of it, but do not have the slightest idea that the borough will have to pay anything toward compensating stockholders who have invested their money in what has proved a losing inrestment from the first, for the loss of their plant. There will be a grand awakening some of these days, and those who are now trying to fly their kites so high will come down from their perch, and it will not need electric lights to illuminate sufficient to se matters in a different light from what they now view the question. That personal interest is more the feeling that actuates the principal movers than is the greater interest professed in the orough's welfare is plainly apparent, and it is only a matter of a short time when the fact will become more apparent, and many are watching and waiting for that day to come. OTHER NOTES.

Allen Sawyer has sold to the Consolidated Raiload company between four and five acres of land on the south plains. The Consolidated road has also purchased a tract of land nearly a half mile wide reaching from the ratiroad to the Quinniplac river for the sand. The fish law on the lake is off on Monday, April I, as is also the trout of the one remedy that preaw on all the streams not controlled by private partles.

A meeting of the American Protecive league will be held this evening in he ante room in town hall building. George F. Cruttenden, recently from the Unitarian church in Springfield, Mass., has been engaged as organist at the Congregational church.

Henry Thompson, the pedestrian, who is en route around the world and struck here Tuesday, has got around a large stock of Wallingford whiskey and yesterday was still in town. He claims to have been arrested about twenty-six times since leaving San Francisco.

The roads outside of town are in terrible condition, owing to the frost coming out of the ground. One of Ar mour's big wagons from Meriden got stuck in the mud to the axles up near the culvert in Yalesville and the horses were unable to get it out and were unhitched and the wagon left in the murd.

Mrs. Emma Pritchard of Church street has made complaint that Mrs. O'Keefe, who lives in the same house, has thrown dirty water on her children. The case was up before Judge Hub-bard yesterday and was continued until Saturday morning.

Rev. Mr. Gessner of West Haven will preach in St. Paul's church this even-

A Valuable Horse-Attempted Poisoning Hartford, March 28 .- Grand Juror Rood, as agent for J. J. McCook of this city, yesterday attached the stallion Belmont, Jr., owned by John P. Jones and valued at $1,400. The claim was for $100. The horse was taken to Lothrop's livery stable. Late last night Jones asked permission to stay in the stable with the horse, as he feared he would be poisoned. Finally a lanter was brought and a quantity of Paris green was found on the floor. It is no known how it was put there.
